Dear Miss Kitching,

Mr. Gordon and I are coming up on Tuesday afternoon.
We shall stay the night at Low Wood Hotel. We are arranging for Mr. Forster of Messrs. Peat & Co. to meet us at 11. 15 on Wednesday morning at Scale How. If convenient to you we shall come along about 10 o'clock.

Yours sincerely,

H. McQueen.

Dear Miss Kitching,

Mr. Gordon and I are arriving at Windermere at 2.20 tomorrow, Tuesday, and will come straight up to Ambleside by the motor bus. This will enable Mr. Lewis to meet us tomorrow. I accordingly sent you a wire this morning saying we will call about 3.30 tomorrow. We can then see Messrs. Peat's representative next morning.

Yours sincerely,

N. McQueen.

Dear Miss Kitching,

Would you be so good as to loan me the Memorandum in Miss Mason's handwriting, which I understood you to say you found amongst her papers stating that she had no next of kin. I think this might be useful as additional evidence to put before the Court.

Yours sincerely,

H. McQueen.

Dear Miss Kitching

I meant to speak to you before I left about the memorandum. I did not read more than the one sentence because I thought it might be of a private nature. That one sentence is however important & I felt it ought to be disclosed. I said nothing to Mr. McQueen about it but am not surprised at his enquiry. Would you have any objection to let me read the whole? I could then judge whether it would be possible to quote the sentence without disclosing more of the contents. I shall be seeing Mr. McQueen on Monday. If you don't care to show me the whole, would you send me an extract of the relevant part & give me a general idea of the nature of the remaining contents? Some of the words are interlined. I should like the extract to show this.

Yours sincerely
W. V. Gordon

Dear Miss Kitching

I received the extract of yesterday the original. The latter speaks of 'a cousin of my Mother's' of his family. There apparently therefore are some relations somewhere.

The cousin 'had a practice in the place' (evidently the Isle of Man). One would expect this to mean a medical practice. I suppose you know of no one who would be likely to know where information could be got about him? There was a 'tall girl in a white frock named
'Lucy & her schoolboy brothers.' Do you know what Miss Mason's Mother's maiden name was?

I shall see Mr. M. Green on Friday & after that shall return the memorandum

Yours sincerely

Counsel advises
that the original memo should be exhibited to the Court. Could you send it to Mr. McQueen
by to-morrow's post?
It will be taken care of, and there will be no publicity.

Dear Miss Kitching,

Thanks for your letter of yesterday's date. I have seen the decision in the Brighton College case as reported in the Times, and I certainly think it should assist.

I enclose you herewith inscribed Certificate for £1,500 25% War Stock, 1929/47 which is probably what Mr. Bell wishes to see. Kindly return this to me when he has finished with it.

Yours sincerely,

A. McQueen.

Dear Miss Kitching,

I am in receipt of your wire saying that you will attend if necessary. I do not think your attendance is necessary, but, thinking you might like to have an opportunity of hearing the arguments before Mr. Justice Romer, I thought it only right to let you know when the case was likely to be heard.

Yours sincerely,

N. McQueen.

25th July 1924

Dear Miss Kitching

You would be glad to receive M^{rs} M^{rs} Queen's telegram on Wednesday.
Though the issue was never really in doubt, the processes of the law must have caused some worry & anxiety to Miss Parish & yourself which I am bound to say I personally shared.
Perhaps my anxiety was the greater because I realised more fully the point of view of the lawyers. None of the legal men concerned - from Judge to Solicitor - could say that the law on "Charities" is so settled that the efficacy of the will could be said to be beyond controversy. They were therefore bound to insist on a full investigation from the point of view of heirs & next of kin who would be entitled if there was a flaw anywhere. The combined efforts of all however - the Council for the Trustees, the Council for the Attorney General, the Council for the possible next of kin & the Judge himself
- could not suggest a flaw, and in the result the will stands. The process has been a tedious one & I am sorry

172A p2cm86

to say it will prove an expensive one, but the effect is worth it for it establishes the will on a firm foundation as nothing else could have done with the same degree of authority.

I came up here on a visit ten days ago & saw up to London for the hearing. I return home on Monday.

There will still be some details to go through to straighten up matters but these need not worry you. At any rate you are out of "Chancery" - if you were ever in it!

I am afraid that Brighton College case will not help us on the Income Tax question, but I'll discuss this with Mr. McQueen in a few days.

With kindest greetings to Miss Parry.

Yours sincerely
W. B. Gordon
